FIELD.

Miss Jane Isabella Banger, after a protracted illness from typhoid fever, died on Saturday morning last, at the residence of her father on Main street, and the burial took place on Sabbath afternoon.

Miss Banger at the time of her death was 17 years 10 months and 5 days of age, and had resided in this City about one year. During this time she lived at her uncle George Daugherty at the Union Hotel, and made many warm friends by her uniformly courteous kind and obliging deportment. Her loss falls heavily upon her grief-stricken parents who are comparative strangers in this city, and all those who have known her in life mourn deeply her untimely death, and will miss her gentle demeanor and pleasant smile which constituted the peculiar charm of her society.

Notwithstanding the extreme heat a large number of friends attended the funeral on Sabbath afternoon and rendered their condolence to the bereaved family.

What the Papers say about our Editor.

Major Wm. Caffrey, once editorially connected with the Sun, but now editor and proprietor of the Brownville, Nebraska, Advertiser, paid the Stock Yards a visit a few days ago, and was warmly welcomed by a host of friends. We are glad to learn that the Major is prospering in his Nebraska home. He is an able writer, an indefatigable worker, and an agreeable gentleman. May success attend him always and everywhere. —Chicago Sun.

Major Wm. Caffrey, who used to play "boss" over us when the Gazette first started, has been visiting Sterling after an absence of nearly ten years. He remarks the rapid advance of our city has made during his absence, and has nowhere seen more substantial evidences of prosperity. Mr. Caffrey is now located in Brownville, Neb., and in the Advertiser he has one of the influential organs of the State. —Genevieve Sterling Ill.

Thirteen of the Lo family of the tribe of Pawnees were in town on Monday last. A good joke is told on our clever friends, Body Bros., who never had stood face to face with the red man of the forest, and had heard of them only as savage barbarians, prowling about seeking of whom they might devour. Some of the boys up street, who were in for fun, told the greasers to go down to the butcher shop where there was a "heap good meat," and "take some, take some." But the proprietor anticipated the danger too soon for the fun to come in, and, locking his door, quietly surveyed their disappointment from the other side of the street. That was right Bro. Body, these Indians are "ard cases."

We received a communication last week of a very ominous character regarding us very forebode of the Ku Klux operations. It bore the characteristic title "Fist Fight" "Silent Men" enclosed in a scroll, and narrates an occurrence of a pugilistic character to which he was a witness. We give place to a portion of the account, not so much to chronicle the pugilistic fight displayed by the belligerents whom we will call Jack and Sam for short, as the descriptive and narrative powers of our correspondent.

"Jack got kerbunkhis & told Sam he had lide & Sam knowing his own way wuz rite he told Jack if he said it agane he wud give him a lamering and Sam told it again, thinking it wuz a game that too kould work at & then Jack hit Sam & that raised his dander & he thot he wuld hit him play poker, so he went at it and what it to Jack in the face & Sam thot he wuz not haff bitten Jack he wuz so mad so he wukt away pretty hard & the blind lue out v Jack's snout [which is later for probos] on Sam's hand and Sam thot that Jack wuz giving him phits and he thot he did not hardly thot Jack Sam sed to himself cuss the luek why kant I hit him & went at it more in earnest than ever for a few bloz and nakt Jack bak a piece, not over 10 rods & when Jack gathered his much disturbed ideas he went at Sam with his hand ready to catch Sam by the throat & his mouth wide open Sam saw that Jack kould not swaller him hull & thinking that he did not want to be chawed up stuck his thumb in Jack's mouth & gave him a short twist & brought him to the ground as flat as a soup wuld taste made of chips. (Enough.)"
